

1. Business + Tech

Use this for stories about companies, industries, startups, technology, and how businesses operate.

Include:

- Major company announcements, acquisitions, layoffs, bankruptcies, and leadership changes
- New products, platforms, devices, and software
- AI, semiconductors, cybersecurity, cloud computing, robotics, biotech, and space technology
- Startup funding and venture capital
- Antitrust cases and regulations primarily affecting companies or technology
- Major labor developments involving specific companies or industries
- Business-model changes, such as subscription pricing or advertising strategies
- Corporate scandals with significant operational or industry consequences

Examples:

- OpenAI releases a new model
- Apple acquires an AI startup
- Amazon cuts 15,000 jobs
- The EU introduces new rules for social-media platforms
- Natural energy companies have their federal tax rate cut 3% by new regulation
- A cyberattack disrupts Microsoft services
- Tesla opens a new factory

Do not place a story here solely because it mentions a public company. A story about Tesla stock falling 15% belongs primarily in Finance unless the important development is the business event that caused the decline.

2. U.S. News

Use this for stories primarily concerning American government, politics, law, public safety, society, infrastructure, or national policy.

Include:

- The president, Congress, federal agencies, and the Supreme Court
- Elections, campaigns, polling, and major political controversies

- Federal and state legislation
- Immigration, education, healthcare, housing, and criminal-justice policy
- Major crimes, terrorism cases, investigations, and national-security threats inside the U.S.
- Natural disasters and emergencies affecting the United States
- Major protests, strikes, and social movements
- Infrastructure failures and transportation disruptions
- U.S. military actions when the main focus is the American government's decision

Examples:

- Congress passes an immigration bill
- The Supreme Court issues a major ruling
- The FBI stops an alleged domestic terror plot
- A hurricane causes widespread damage in Florida
- The president authorizes strikes against Iran
- A major teachers' strike begins in California

A U.S. company story should still go in Business + Tech unless its main importance is governmental or societal.

3. Global News

Use this for international politics, wars, diplomacy, humanitarian crises, and important developments outside the United States.

Include:

- Wars, military operations, ceasefires, and territorial changes
- Elections and leadership changes outside the U.S.
- International diplomacy, treaties, sanctions, and alliances
- Political unrest, coups, and major protests
- Humanitarian crises, migration, famine, and disease outbreaks
- Natural disasters outside the U.S.
- International organizations such as the UN, NATO, EU, and WHO
- Major foreign policy developments involving multiple countries
- Foreign government actions with broad geopolitical consequences

Examples:

- Iran strikes U.S. bases in the Gulf
- Ukraine attacks a Russian oil refinery
- EU countries advance Ukraine's membership talks

- A new prime minister is elected in the United Kingdom
- China and Taiwan conduct military exercises
- An earthquake causes widespread destruction in Japan

For a conflict involving the United States, classify it according to the main focus:

- U.S. decision or domestic political consequences: U.S. News
- Battlefield developments or international consequences: Global News

4. Culture + Media

Use this for stories about entertainment, sports, creators, social trends, public attention, and how information or culture spreads.

Include:

- Film, television, music, books, gaming, and celebrities
- Major sports results and controversies
- Social-media trends, viral stories, and internet culture
- Streaming services and entertainment platforms
- Journalism, newspapers, television networks, and media organizations
- Awards, festivals, major releases, and cultural events
- Creator-economy developments
- Public controversies primarily centered on reputation, speech, or cultural influence
- Changes in consumer behavior, language, fashion, or popular culture

Examples:

- A major film breaks box-office records
- Netflix cancels or renews a high-profile show
- A celebrity faces a major public controversy
- The World Cup final is decided
- TikTok introduces a new creator-payment system
- A media company changes its editorial leadership

A Netflix acquisition belongs in Business + Tech if the central issue is corporate strategy. A hit Netflix show belongs in Culture + Media.

5. Finance

Use this for stories whose main significance is markets, asset prices, monetary policy, banking, investment, or the economy's measurable financial performance.

Include:

- Large moves in stocks, indexes, bonds, currencies, commodities, or crypto
- Federal Reserve and other central-bank decisions
- Inflation, employment, GDP, retail sales, and other major economic data
- Banking crises and financial-system risks
- Earnings reports when they materially move markets
- IPOs, major investment flows, and market valuations
- Interest rates, mortgage rates, and bond yields
- Oil and commodity-price changes
- Hedge funds, private equity, asset managers, and major investors
- Market reactions to political or geopolitical events

Examples:

- The S&P 500 falls 3%
- Nvidia shares rise 12% after earnings
- The Federal Reserve cuts interest rates
- Bitcoin crosses a major price level
- Oil prices surge after attacks in the Gulf
- U.S. inflation comes in above expectations

The Finance section should explain:

1. What moved
2. How much it moved
3. Why it moved
4. Why the movement matters
